True, the necessary expenses of the government were not then so large as now, but how these it come that our national expenditures have doubled in the past few years? Take the closing year of Mr. Filmore's administration, and the sum in round numbers is forty three mil lions, and to day it is near one hundred millions. Our country was quite as large in 1852 as now, the necessary demands for expenses quite as varied and extensive, yet why does it require, annually, fifty mil lions more than under the reign of Mr Fillmore? Why is it that at the close of Fillmore's administration we were not only gradually extinguishing the national debt, and administering the government for about forty three millions annually. while now the leaders of the Democracy are rapidly increasing the national debt and requiring from seventy to one hundred millions annually?
